Biography

Ilham Akhsanu Ridlo is an assistant professor in health policy at Universitas Airlangga. His research focuses on the intersection of science journalism and the political process in health policy-making. He serves on the advisory board of The Indonesian Journal of Health Administration (IJHA) and is a National Association of Science Writers (NASW) member. He is an active contributor to the media and has initiated the Indonesian Science Communication Labs (IDSCL), writing popular science columns and campaigning for the Open Science movement in Indonesia.

His current doctoral research project at LMU Munich is "Communicating Science: Collaboration Between Scientists and Journalists in Covering the COVID-19 Pandemic in Indonesia."
