

Thank you for your interest in the Borderline Personality Disorder Inventory (BPD-I).™ This inventory is a clinically-derived, psychodynamically-informed screening tool for borderline personality disorder (BPD). It consists of 25 yes/no items and is scored out of 25. Instructions for scoring and interpretation are provided at the bottom of the inventory. It was developed to address the lack of brief, psychodynamically-informed screening tools for BPD.

The BPD-I™ is intended for use by psychiatrists and psychotherapists to screen for the possible presence of BPD. It is not a diagnostic test and cannot provide definitive diagnosis of BPD. Results should be considered within the context of a comprehensive diagnostic evaluation.

This questionnaire has not currently been studied empirically. Items have been reviewed by a group of mental health professionals from around the world, including psychiatrists, psychoanalysts, clinical psychologists, and psychometricians.

The BPD-I™ is free to use and disseminate, with proper attribution.
